A Brief History

Since the inception of The Film Music Society, The Cue Sheet has been its principal publication — originally titled the Newsletter of the Society for the Preservation of Film Music. From its humble beginnings as a multi-page mimeograph, this quarterly journal has matured to become a highly respected source for articles and essays on the subject of film and television music. Its content has remained consistent with news from the preservation front, interviews with composers and others of interest, book reviews, biographical essays, opinion pieces and in-memoriam tributes. More recently, the journal has increased its efforts toward preserving the legacy of film music with reprints of historical articles by noted composers and authors as well as the inclusion of rare photographs and other visual materials. (Since 2003, all newsletter-type content, such as short articles and timely news pieces, is published regularly on the FMS web site.)

Clifford McCarty served as editor from Vol. 1, No. 1 through Vol. 4, No. 2. Kevin Fahey edited Vol. 4, No. 3; Fahey and Leslie T. Zador served as editors of Vol. 4, No. 4 and Vol. 5, No. 1, the first two issues to be published in the smaller, 5 1/2-by-8 1/2 inch digest size. With Vol. 5, No. 2, Zador assumed the title of managing editor and remained in that capacity through Vol. 7, No. 2. McCarty returned to edit Vol. 7, No. 3, but beginning with Vol. 7, No. 4, The Cue Sheet was overseen by an editorial committee consisting of various members of the organization's Board of Trustees and its executive director at the time, Jeannie Pool.

The one-of-a-kind spiral-bound Vol. 9, No. 1 was a landmark issue: H. Stephen Wright's directory of film-music collections in America, the first time that such a roundup of movie-music scores, manuscripts and resources had ever been assembled. Wright updated the information in 1996 for a separate Society publication called Film Music Collections in the United States: A Guide. Marsha Berman assumed editorship with Vol. 9, No. 2. She called upon two colleagues (John Fitzpatrick and H. Stephen Wright) to handle book and record reviews, and experimented with a slightly larger format in two expanded issues (the 6-by-9 inch Vol. 10, Nos. 1/2 and 3/4), but the change met with resistance and the smaller format resumed with Vol. 11.

At that point, Jon Burlingame took over as editor (with considerable assistance from Jeannie Pool as associate editor and publication coordinator until her departure from the Society after Vol. 17). Heavier-stock covers also became the rule, although funding over the next six years became problematic and The Cue Sheet suffered from an erratic publication schedule. The decision was made to delay publication for the year 2003 and resume in 2004 with Vol. 18 (dated 2003/2004).

Beginning with Vol. 19, No. 2 (April 2004), Marilee Bradford joined Jon Burlingame as co-editor, and gave the journal a basic redesign and new layout. She has continued as editor and art director as of Vol. 20, No. 2 (April 2005).

In this index to the publication, we endeavor to list every article of significant length, along with its author (if identified.) In a handful of cases, we have described the content if it is not clear from the title (such as round-table discussions featuring several composers). The first few volumes were text-only publications with few or no photographs or illustrations; cover shots became a regular feature with Vol. 5, No. 1.

Technically, there was no Vol. 8, No. 4. In lieu, the Society published an oversized program book for its First International Film Music Conference, held March 11-15, 1992, which also doubled as the program for its 1992 Career Achievement Award dinner honoring Henry Mancini. A note at the end of the book stated that “subscribers to The Cue Sheet should consider this publication as Vol. 8, No. 4, March 1992.” The date is accurate if inconsistent with Vol. 9, No. 1, which is actually dated two months earlier. The book, however, does contain two text pieces of interest to scholars and researchers:
